The rink will be put in good repair, and the followers of the "Roaring Game" can rest assured that the different committees will make every effort to see that interest in the game is kept up throughout the season.

What Is Right With Canada?

A moderate optimist, we are told, is one who sees both the good and the bad, the pleasing and the displeasing, the bright and the dark, the encouraging and the discouraging, but prefers to think and talk about the brighter and better things.

At the present time we have more than a sufficiency of pessimists, scape-hangers, disseminators of blue ruin gossip. We also have a few incorrigible optimists who shut their eyes and ears to the actual facts of any situation and cry "All is well."

What Canada and the world needs today are more moderate optimists, men and women who, looking at both sides of the pictures, refuse to be depressed by the darker colors and shadows and find encouragement and great promise in the brighter colors and the rays of sunshine breaking through the clouds.

Major Yeats-Brown, an Englishman, is the type of moderate optimist whose number should be multiplied. As an offset to the many things that have been said in answer to the query: "What is Wrong with England?" he advances the question? "What is Right with England?" and proceeds to answer his own question most entertainingly in the London Spectator.

Would it not be advisable for us in this country to also reverse the usual question we hear so often asked these days, and, rather, make answer to the query: "What is Right with Canada?" We may well do so, because there are so many things that are right with this Dominion, so many more right things than there are wrong things, that we are doubly foolish to ignore them and dwell upon the smaller ills.

Looking around Canada we can discover a multitude of good things, the very best things. We find, for example, one of the most healthy, robust people in the world, possessing an abounding vitality and charged with initiative and energy. And of all the blessings which can be bestowed upon a nation or individual, what other one blessing, or group of blessings, surpasses that of health? Possessing health all things are possible; lacking it all the wealth of the world is valueless to bring joy and happiness into one's life.

Looking at other countries, we find many of them filled with hatreds, with strife uppermost in the minds of the people, their thoughts and energies devoted to preparation for possible warfare. In Canada, on the other hand, we have a land occupied by a peace-loving people with a positive and growing hatred of war, making no preparations for war, but devoting their thoughts and energies to the arts and advancements of peace. No other country in the world is so "right" on the subject of peace and disarmament as is Canada.

Grouped with health and a sane viewpoint of man's relations to man we can place the moral and intellectual outlook of a nation. Looking over our broad Dominion we find a deep-rooted moral fibre, strong and sturdier than in most lands, with an abiding respect for law and order which no other country can excel, and which far surpasses that entertained by the people of any other country in either North or South America. We find Canada a land of schools and universities, a land in the very front rank of all movements for social betterment, a land the very foundations of which are sound, strong and stable.

Generally speaking, too, Canadian institutions of all kinds, whatever their faults, are strong and sound, constituting a bulwark in defence of the people. A bank failure in Canada is a rare thing; our railways are progressive and efficient, fitting their programmes well into the life and needs of the Dominion. We are not—and never can be—immune from the vicissitudes and effects of world conditions and happenings, but, even so, we have it within ourselves, in our institutions and resources, to withstand the evil effects of world matters beyond our own direct control, and to rally from those bad effects more rapidly than any other land. At this present time, Canada, notwithstanding its difficulties and business depression, is infinitely better off and stronger than most countries, and is suffering from less unemployment, proportionate to its population, than the United States.

Let us, therefore, dwell a little more on "What is Right?" and the effect of doing so will unquestionably be to lessen interest in the more depressing question "What is Wrong?" Isn't the search for right things most likely to expand and thus diminish keenness in the search for wrong things? And isn't it just possible that the volume of right things will grow and be properly recognized until presently the wrong things are forgotten, or at most given their proper relative place in the general scheme? Let us join the quest of the moderate optimist.

English Being Taught In German Schools

Classes Are Popular and Students Show Great Interest

Every boy and girl in Germany is being taught English, according to Prof. Max Zimple, author of English and German textbooks, who was in New York recently.

"Our students are tremendously interested in anything about America," he explained. "Every language teacher reports that the classes teaching English are very popular. We teach the same pronunciation heard in the South of England."

The school system in Germany is quite different to the United States, the visiting professor says. Over there the aim is to have an aristocracy of learning. They do not desire to have every boy and girl graduate, but rather to make the work so difficult that only the brightest pupils can finish their high school course. Children who are backward in school are given a sound elementary training and then the government apprentices them to a good trade for four years.

CONSTIPATED CHILDREN

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it positively cannot thrive. To keep the little one well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take and can be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Refreshing Treat

Church Supper Gives People Opportunity For Sociability

The season for the church supper and the festival is here. These delightful events crowd the late summer and early autumn evenings. In this day and generation of so-called high-speed existence when we seem to depend so largely on manufactured enjoyment it is indeed a refreshing treat to attend the rural church supper or festival. At these events there is to be found wholesomeness and a plenty of food and association for greater values than the price paid for the ticket. These affairs are conducted for profit of course, but is a broader profit than monetary gain alone.

Sleep is the great nourisher of infants, and without peaceful sleep the child will not thrive. This cannot be got if the infant be troubled with worms. Miller's Worm Powders will destroy worms and drive them from the system, and afterwards the child's rest will be undisturbed. The powders cannot injure the most delicate baby, and there is nothing so effective for restoring the health of a worm-worm infant.

His ambition to paint dates from the time he learned to write by the same method. He is twenty-three now.

Impatient For Disarmament

League Of Nations Is Called Upon To Take Quick Action

A vehement and sometimes impudent demonstration, urging the hastening of the League of Nations' disarmament programme and early calling of a general conference for reduction and limitation of armaments, was witnessed in the League assembly's disarmament committee at Geneva recently.

From this rally there arose a promise of J. J. Loudon, chairman of the preparatory disarmament commission, that the commission would meet November 3 and fervidly seek to finish its task of clearing the way completely for a congress of all nations to construct a scheme of general disarmament. Voices from countries that were neutral during the World War, joined those from states which were disarmed by the war in the demand that the League should get along quickly with its long delayed purpose of inducing nations to lay aside their fighting.

Four Doses Relieved Bad Attack of Cholera

Mr. W. J. Cooper, Maughan, Alta., writes—"A year ago last spring I arrived in Canada with my family, and one of my boys, aged six, was suffering very much with cholera. When we arrived I had a few hours to wait, and told one of the attendants at the station about it, and he asked me if I had ever tried Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I had never heard of it in England, so he told me I could get it in Winnipeg. I am pleased to say I had only to give the child four doses and he got well and was quite cheerful by the next morning."

Livestock Is Shown To Be A Prime Factor In Economic Development Of The West

A popular idea is that revenue in the Canadian prairie provinces is derived almost wholly from grains. A second idea is that the growth of home-steading vastly increased grain production at the expense of livestock and cut down drastically the number of head of livestock between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains. Both ideas need considerable revision.

The rapid settlement of the Prairie Provinces made possible by grain growing has been accompanied by an increase in livestock that has more than compensated for the reduction in ranches, so far as numbers are concerned. Self-sustaining farming demands the raising of livestock, and the change in the West in this respect within the past decade or so has been remarkable. Today, though the livestock industry in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta has only touched the edge of possibilities, the number of head of cattle, sheep, and swine on farms is an important percentage of the whole in the Dominion. The fact has great value economically, for it tends to spread agricultural wealth more evenly over the seasons than is possible with grain farming only.

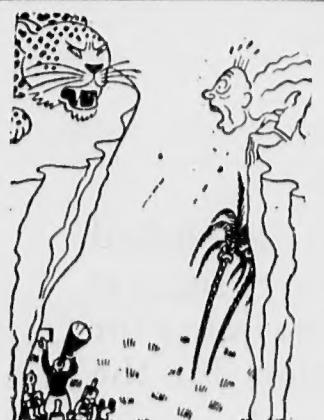

The four western provinces have now more than three times as many cattle, more than four times as many sheep and nearly eight times as many swine as there were in the most palmy range day. Comparative figures for the year 1901, when complete records were first gathered, and 1929, are as follows:

Year	Cattle	Sheep	Swine
1901	1,066,627	215,996	241,794
1929	3,554,040	1,114,143	1,728,603

It is interesting to examine the figures representing the livestock production of Western Canada for the last eight years. In arriving at the total it is difficult to gauge the number of head of livestock slaughtered on farms for home use and by local butchers and at small, uninspected killing plants. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics finds that in the case of cattle inspected, slaughterings run about fifty per cent. of the yearly estimated total kill in Canada, hogs about forty per cent., and sheep about forty per cent. By making the necessary adjustments, therefore, on the inspected slaughterings in the Western provinces a fairly close estimate of the local or uninspected killings may be made.

Total figures representing some seven and one-third million cattle, over eighteen million hogs and about two and three-quarter million sheep look to the credit of Western Canada at first glance. When it is found by further figuring that for the same period 15,398,097 cattle, 47,481,905 hogs and 10,905,429 sheep and lambs are the estimated total killings in the whole Dominion of Canada, a slightly different aspect of the picture is presented. Continuing with the comparison it is seen that Western Canada produced roughly 48 per cent of the total cattle, 38 per cent. of the swine and about 25 per cent. of the sheep and lambs.

Is this a fair share of the total, or could Western Canada, everything considered, have been expected to produce a greater percentage of the total? If only livestock production is considered in terms of acres of land under cultivation and suitable for cattle production one might form the

Sheepmen's Opportunity

Demand For Mutton and Lamb Is Steadily On the Increase

Reports from some leading sheep producing countries is that a reduction in the flocks is taking place. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the United States believes the decrease will continue for the next two or three years. This should suggest to Canadian sheepmen a policy of "staying in." Our total sheep number is insignificant compared with the estimated total of about 700 million for the whole world. Still more to the point, it is actually too small for a country of ten million population in which the demand for lamb and mutton is steadily going up. The per capita consumption of these meats is still a long way from being equal to that of some other countries and the indications are for a steadily growing demand for good quality Canadian lambs for a long period.

In the United States the unwise of going out of sheep too strongly is hinted at by the Bureau when it states: "The individual producer is advised to consider carefully his feed supplies and the long-time outlook for the sheep industry in making his plans for next year. Where feed supplies are available he may find that present conditions offer a good opportunity for improving the quality of his breeding flock."

Raise More Geese

Good Returns Obtained On a Very Small Investment

Geese raising does not receive the attention by the farming community that the business warrants, assert poultry experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The farm is the natural habitat of the goose, providing those two great essentials to successful geese raising — free range and an abundance of green foods. Raising a flock of geese is one means by which the farmer can reap a good reward with a very small investment and comparatively little labour. Geese command a good price on the Christmas market and the demand is always greater than the supply.

World's Grain Show

Many Countries Have Signified Their Intention Of Being Represented

Belgium has officially accepted the invitation to take part in the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference at Regina, from July 25th to August 6th, 1932. Some little time ago official invitations were sent from the Dominion Government to all countries inviting them to participate and a number of these have already signified their desire to do so. They include Peru, Jugo-Slavia, Guatemala, New Zealand, Poland, Czechoslovakia, The Netherlands and Belgium.

Veteran Canadian Explorer

Returns To Atlantic With Relics of Franklin Expedition

Satisfied that all the information which it is humanly possible to discover regarding the fate of the Sir John Franklin party, which perished among the Arctic islands off the mainland of Canada 83 years ago, has been gleaned, Major L. T. Burwash, veteran explorer, returned to Ottawa with a number of relics.

Their discovery in an abandoned camp on King William Island, between Victory Point and Lady Jane Franklin Point, added little to what was already known, beyond definitely establishing the locale of at least one staying place in the long trek which appears to have ended hundreds of miles south, on the Canadian mainland, near the mouth of Back's Fish River.

The fragment of a canvas tent, circular in shape, and lending color to the assumption that this portion had been frozen to the ground while those occupying it had torn away the remainder, pieces of naval broadcloth, some inch-thick rope, and the rusted blade of a knife constitute Major Burwash's find. He encountered two graves on King William Island, but from these nothing could be gathered. Of the grave of Sir John Franklin himself, no trace was found.

In spite of the 80-odd years that have elapsed since the two ships, "Erebus" and "Terror," set out in an attempt to discover the North West Passage, a certain fascination continues to surround the fate of their crews. For 70 years a veil of silence has shrouded them, and only one small scrap of paper has ever been discovered relating to the expedition. This was the report and message found on King William Island by the search expedition of Captain McClintock in 1857. The message, signed by Sir John Franklin, announced how the two ships had wintered at Beechey Island in 1846, and that all was well. But marginal notes on the paper written by another hand at a later date, conveyed the information that Sir John Franklin had died in June 1847. The notes gave the strength of the party as 105 and they proclaimed the intention to essay an overland journey from King William Island to the Canadian mainland at Back's Fish River.

Predicts Growth Of Dairying

Manitoba Dairy Commissioner Notes Steady Increase Of Industry In the West

L. A. Gibson, dairy commissioner for Manitoba, states that he never saw a better show of butter than that exhibited by Manitoba at the Toronto Exhibition. He noted a steady growth of interest in the dairy industry of the West, and pointed out that in Manitoba alone the sale of butter, cheese, cream, milk and other dairy products amounted now to $15,000,000 a year. He believed that the next few years would witness an even greater growth in dairy production.

Manager: "You're late today, Miss Brown."

Typist: "Yes, sir; I fell downstairs."

Manager: "Well, that didn't take long, did it?"

That this trek was attempted is clear from Eskimo tradition. In 1850, Dr. John Fae of the Hudson's Bay Company, surveying the coastline in that neighborhood, encountered natives who were then using tableware and other utensils which bore the mark of the Franklin expedition. They informed him that years before a group of white men had been seen straggling across the ice to the mainland, "dying as they walked." Verification of the Eskimo tradition was secured at Starvation Cove, where later expeditions located about 40 graves.

The purpose of Major Burwash's flight to King William Island was, in part, to verify, if possible, the story of an American mining engineer, naefd Jemme, who, many years ago, originated a report concerning the Franklin party which would, if correct, have thrown new light on their fate. This story, in document form, was bought by the Department of the Interior, from T. W. Jackson, of Vancouver, B.C. In his report to the minister, Major Burwash definitely establishes that the Jemme story is without foundation.

With two companions, Pilot Gilbert, of the Western Canada Airways, and Richard Finnie, of the Department of the Interior, Major Burwash flew from Bernard Harbor, northwest of the mouth of the Coppermine River, to Boothia Peninsula — the magnetic pole — and thence to King William Island. Landing in a fresh water lake some distance inland, he prosecuted his search between Victory Point and Lady Jane Franklin Point. Having made his discoveries, he returned by air to Coppermine, thence south to Great Slave Lake, Fort Smith, and McMurray, Alberta.

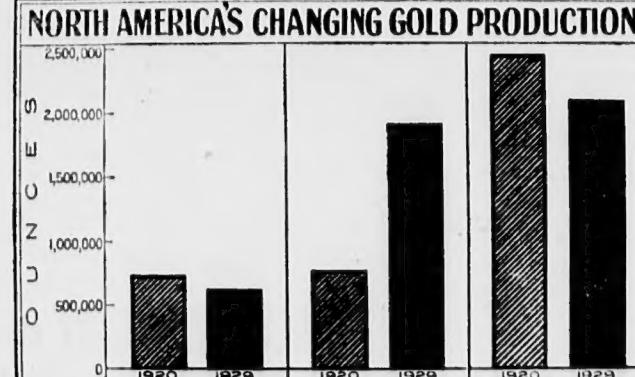

Over 2,000 photographs were taken by Mr. Finnie during the flight. These will be of great value to topographers in correcting many inaccuracies regarding the coastline of the mainland and the islands over which the party flew. Matty Island, for example, near where it is believed one of the Franklin ships sank, is not an island, but an archipelago comprising hundreds of islands. Other discrepancies were noted.

International Boundary

Important Work In Connection With Demarcation Of 5,000 Miles Of Border

In carrying out its duties of maintaining in a state of effective demarcation the 5,500 miles of international boundary between Canada and the United States, in accordance with the provisions of the Treaty of 1925, the International Boundary Commission, the Canadian section of which functions under the Surveys Bureau of the Department of the Interior, has this year a number of important operations on hand. These include reopening the vista and repairing the monuments on some fifty miles of the highlands boundary between Quebec and Maine, making surveys for the revision of certain of the boundary maps between British Columbia and the state of Washington, and erecting monuments at the point where an important international highway between Kelowna, B.C., and Portland, Oregon, crosses the boundary. It is also intended to locate and mark the boundary in the new Detroit-Windsor tunnel before it is officially open for traffic.

NORTH AMERICA'S CHANGING GOLD PRODUCTION

North America is, next to Africa, the chief gold-producing continent, usually contributing about one-quarter of the world's annual gold output. Within the past decade the North American production of the yellow metal has been rather more than held its own, but this showing has been due entirely to the fact that Canada's rising output has been sufficient to offset the declines in the United States and Mexico. Ten years ago the gold output of the United States was three times as great as that of the Dominion. Today the two countries are almost on a par in that regard.

REDUCTION IN SOLDIERS' DEBT

When soldier settlers who purchased land from the Soldiers' Settlement Board make their usual payments in October, their official statement will show an all-round reduction of their indebtedness amounting to 30 per cent. Ex-service men who purchased land from the Soldiers' Settlement Board, in many cases paid excessively high prices.

A bill providing for revaluation was passed in 1927. Where it appeared to the satisfaction of the Board that the purchase price was too high, reductions were made of approximately 25 per cent. Notwithstanding this, it was felt that the indebtedness of productive value of the lands, in addition to which interest charges piled up at such a rate that the men were unable to carry on, and in many instances abandoned their holdings. At the first session of Parliament in 1930 a bill was passed providing for an all-round reduction of 30 per cent. on a soldier settler's aggregate indebtedness for purchase price and accumulated interest. This reduction applied to soldier settlers who borrowed from the Soldier Settlement Board in order to purchase land from a third party, although such borrowers did not benefit by the 1927 bill, which provided for a revaluation of their lands.

Another advantage of the 1930 bill was that it released purchasers who had borrowed in order to purchase stock or equipment. Loans for this purpose were secured by chattel mortgage on such equipment, as well as a mortgage on the land, and by the 1930 bill the land mortgage is considered sufficient to cover all indebtedness. Needless to say, this legislation will make the settler's burden infinitely easier.

In connection with this revaluation, it is interesting to note that up to date $6,300,000 has been written off, and it is expected that another $1,200,000 will be written off before the work is completed.

LOCAL & GENERAL

Mr. J. J. Neufeldt left on Tuesday for his new home at Salmon Arm, B.C.

Messrs. George and Elvin Eamor, brother and cousin of Mrs. E. Marcellus, have been visiting here for the past two weeks.

Mr. E. Marcellus, and Mr. Elvin Eamor drove to Calgary to attend a surprise party given one of the staff of the Guarantee Cleaners on Friday night.

Special work will be put on at the next meeting of Didsbury Oddfellows to be held on Thursday evening, November 6th. The initiatory degree will be conferred upon seven candidates. All members, and the visiting oddfellows are invited to attend.

Our attention has been called to the need of pruning of some of the trees in the north end of town. Some of the limbs overhanging the sidewalks are so low, that it is necessary for a tall man to stoop when walking under them. Pruning of the lower limbs would not only do away with this inconvenience, but improve the looks of the trees.

Several complaints have been made recently of boys riding their cycles on the sidewalks in town, much to the inconvenience of the pedestrians. There is a bylaw prohibiting this practice, and one business man declares that if the authorities do not take action to prohibit this practice, he will lay information against the offenders.

H. P. Hardy went to Calgary on Monday to purchase equipment for a battery service station, which he intends to open in the building occupied by Mr. J. W. Phillipson. Mr. Hardy has had considerable experience in battery service work in southern Alberta, and intends to fit his workshop with all the latest equipment for this work.

News comes from Durham, California, of the marriage of Mr. Kenneth Russell McNair, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wahl, to Miss Florence Mac Foster, whose parents live in the Peace River district. After the ceremony, the happy couple left by motor for their wedding trip, and on their return, will take up their residence in Hamilton City, Calif., where Mr. McNair is associated with a sugar company.

Officials of the Calgary Power Co., Ltd. were in the district this week, making arrangements for the establishment of beacons on the air-route between Calgary and Edmonton. One beacon will be established about four miles east of Carstairs, and another on the J. Rosenberg farm, in the Mayton district. Powerlines will be built from the main power line along the Calgary-Edmonton highway to the point where the landing-fields are laid out.

UNDER CONTROL OR NO CONTROL?

UNDER CONTROL: with beer being sold by reputable licensed hotels under government supervision.

NO CONTROL: with bootleggers running rampant as in the old prohibition days.

Reasons why you should NOT sign the prohibition petition urging the government to abolish the sale of beer by the glass or bottle, thus doing away with beer rooms, clubs, and canteens.

1. The proposal to disturb the act comes from a small body of people, whose social theories have not withstood the test of actual experience.

2. The Trades and Labor Congress are on record as being in favor of the sale of beer-by-the-glass.

3. By virtue of the local option provisions of the act, communities may extinguish a license when a majority of public opinion so expresses itself.

4. No license has been withdrawn as a result of a local option vote, either in 1929 or 1930, though licenses attacked were at points where conditions appeared to the prohibitionists as favorable to a dry result.

5. In a total of 58 local option votes taken since the act came into force, only four licences have been cancelled as a result of votes; and these licenses, were, in every case, adversely affected by peculiar local influence.

6. Absence of criticism at the last two provincial elections.

7. Hotel accommodation, particularly at country points, has improved as a direct result of the act, to a standard unequalled in any other province.

8. The general endorsement of the act by the travelling public and the willingness of the public generally to assist in enforcing the act, by giving information regarding infractions and interdicting those needing protection from their own weakness.

9. Bootlegging and moonshining have been eliminated as remunerative pursuits. This, together with strict government control, has placed all intoxicating liquors beyond the reach of minors. Fewer cases of intoxication in the police courts, in spite of a considerable increase in population. Leave the police of the province free to perform their natural functions, that of protecting the people, not taking up their time trying to enforce what has proved to be unenforceable legislation. Remember you cannot legislate men's minds, because they will never obey a law they do not respect. This was proven in prohibition days.

10. The operation of the act provides a large public revenue, (4½ cents of every 10c expended) this helped to increase the general revenue of the province, and prevent increased taxation. Formerly, such revenue went to the bootleggers and moonshiners.

11. Official reports commend the act as eminently practical. They contain no important criticism of the act's clauses. Police reports indicate a continuous improvement in the general state of law and order.

12. The real motive prompting the petition is to render the act unworkable by eliminating the retail sale of beer-by-the-glass or bottle; the ultimate aim being the return of total prohibition.

If the beer rooms & clubs are abolished what does the Prohibition Party suggest to take their place? Is it to be liquor for the wealthy and prohibition for the worker?

Town Planning
In Alberta

Article 9.
Provincial Parks.

In the Town Planning Act, 1929, provision was made for the purchase of land for Provincial Park purposes. It was passed, under provisions of which a Provincial Parks Board has been appointed, composed of: Mr. J. D. Robertson, Deputy Minister of Public Works, Chairman; Mr. Alex. Paton, Provincial Landscape Gardener, and Mr. Horace L. Seymour, Provincial Director of Town Planning.

This Board will have charge of the control and management of Provincial Parks. Provision is also made by the Province, of a Board of Management for any particular park or area.

Under provisions of the Parks and Protected Areas Act, there may be also constituted, "protected" areas for the purpose of protecting therein, objects of natural beauty, fossil remains, or other objects, animate or inanimate, of geological, ethnological, historical, or other scientific interest. In such protected areas, there may be forbidden or regulated, the excavation of fossil remains, and penalties may be prescribed, including those for interference with "historic objects."

ALBERTA WHEAT POOL

Biggest Day's Receipts 800,000
Bushels on October 6th

Eighty new members joined the Alberta Wheat Pool during the first eight days of October. Contracts have been coming in to head office in a steady stream in spite of the fact that no active canvassing is being done. During the month of September 171 signed contracts were received by the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Deliveries of wheat to Pool elevators reached the high water mark on Monday, October 6th, when the day's receipts totalled over 800,000 bushels. The bulk of the receipts of grain by Pool elevators has been received from Southern Alberta as threshing has been delayed in the central and northern portions of the Province.

The earlier threshed grain from the southern part of Alberta showed remarkably high protein according to tests made from many points. Samples from Hesketh and Iddlesleigh showed a protein content of 19 per cent., while many other points supplied samples of wheat which tested from 15 to 18 per cent. protein content.

The semi-annual meeting of the boards of directors of the three provincial pools of Western Canada will be held at Calgary, October 16th. These interprovincial meetings are held alternately in Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary.

The terminal elevator at Victoria, B.C., owned by the Panama Pacific Grain Company, has been leased by the Alberta Wheat Pool. This terminal has a capacity of one million bushels. The Alberta Wheat Pool now has control of terminal storage of over nine million bushels on the Pacific coast.

PROSPERITY IS?

Bert Huffman in the Market Examiner gives his theory of prosperity—the contented mind. He says:

"After all, prosperity is but a state of mind. It does not mean so much per week or month, nor so much income a year. It does not really mean anything definite.

"People with a contented mind in a pleasant environment making an honest living and keeping out of debt, no matter where their home may be, are the truly prosperous people of the earth.

"Prosperity is not in racing over the earth chasing fairy tales of immense wealth won overnight. Pros-

INDIGESTION

Banished by Kruschen

"I suffered for some years from a bad stomach. I used to feel very miserable after meals. The doctor advised me to take Epsom Salts, but it did me no good. I decided to try Kruschen and am now taking it, and have done for the past 12 months, and I am very glad to tell you that my stomach is now in perfect order. I feel as young in spirit as I was 20 years ago, thanks to Kruschen." (W.B.)

You know how badly an engine runs when it gets clogged up. It's the same with your body when your gastric—or digestive—juices fail to flow. What you need is a tonic—Nature's own tonic—Nature's six mineral salts.

You get all these six salts in Kruschen. The first effect of these salts is to promote the flow of the saliva and so awaken the appetite. The next action occurs in the stomach, where the digestive juices are encouraged to pour out and act upon the food. Again, in the intestinal tract, certain of these salts promote a further flow of these vital juices which deal with partly digested food and prepare it finally for absorption into the system.

Use Of Platinum
Suggested For Coinage*But South African Government Finds
Difficulties In the Way

The decline in prices has affected even such rare and costly commodities as diamonds and platinum. The government of South Africa has sought to limit production in the diamond fields between the Orange and Vaal Rivers so as to stabilize the diamond market, but platinum is produced in such widely separated areas that any centralized control over output appears to be impracticable. As a substitute for regulated production Dr. George F. Kunz proposes in an article appearing in the Mineral Industry that a new demand for platinum be created by the government's using it for coinage.

Platinum money is not wholly an innovation, as Russia experimented with its coinage many years ago. But the interesting thing about this proposal is its resemblance to the demand in this country in the eighties and nineties of the last century for the unlimited coinage of silver for the same purpose — namely, the stabilization of the price of the metal. The scheme in effect would be a new form of bimetallism. The experience of the United States and Europe during the last century proved conclusively that bimetallism is possible only in theory, as any change in the relative value of the two metals which are supposed to circulate concurrently would drive the dearer metal out of circulation.

If a platinum coin became worth more as metal than as a piece of money, it would cease to circulate and be used in the arts; if its face value exceeded the value of its metallic content, platinum that would ordinarily be used in the arts would be rushed to the mints instead, and gold would tend to be displaced from circulation. This would prove disturbing to business in many ways. The gold standard is far from perfect, but it is the most satisfactory monetary system yet devised. It produces complications enough without the injection of another from the coinage of a new metal. And if our people object to the use of gold coin they will object still more to platinum, which, weight for weight, is worth two and a half times as much as gold and is likely also to be confused with silver.

Sweden maintains its lead in the shipbuilding industry among the Scandinavian countries, according to the latest reports. At the Swedish yards 26 vessels with an aggregate tonnage of 127,000 gross tons were in the course of construction at the end of the first half-year. Denmark comes second with 29 ships of 116,000 gross tons and Norway third with 33 ships of 40,000 gross tons. Of the ships at present being built in Sweden nine are steamers or motorships, 2,000 gross tons each, two motorships of 2,000 to 4,000 tons, four motorships of 5,000 to 6,000 tons, and six motorships of 8,000 to 10,000 tons.

Flour centre of board generously, drop dough on it, pat or roll out very lightly to $\frac{1}{4}$ thickness. Cut out, bake 15 to 20 minutes in hot oven.

All ingredients should be cold. Handle as little and as lightly as possible and avoid working in more flour after milk has been added.

Saving For the PeopleSays Saskatchewan May Save Over $300,000 In Connection With Freight Rates On Canned Goods

"People of Saskatchewan will save over $300,000 this year on canned goods," states Hon. J. A. Merkley, Minister of Railways and Labor. The figure $300,000 had been given to the department as the estimate of a large wholesale grocery firm with a warehouse in Regina, he said.

"The estimate will be very close to correct," Mr. Merkley said. The rates in effect would continue until the close of navigation on the great lakes and then the matter "will have to be fought out all over again," he added.

The government had received the support of the boards of trade of Saskatchewan, the Retail Merchants' Association, and the United Farmers of Canada in the fight, which had been won on July 14 and September 16, Mr. Merkley said in conclusion.

Bore her—Nick, who had never said a dull thing in his life! And he really meant it. She could tell by the look in his eyes. He wasn't joking. It made her smile, even as she answered shakily, because she couldn't quite control her voice: "I always knew, Nick, that you possessed a streak of chivalry; but to have it carry you to this extent—"

"Chivalry be darned!" he interrupted. "That's tommyrot, my dear, and you know it. Come on, Gay. Be a sport. Put on your old grey bonnet or whatever headgear you prefer—the a few necessities in a handkerchief, and—" He closed his eyes, folded his arms, and softly sang: "Oh, that we two were Maying"

Nick's voice, sweet and true as a bird's, always stirred the girl. She turned now and laid her hand on his.

"You're a good friend, Nick—the best I ever had, or ever shall have. I'll never forget what you've done for me just now. Somehow, it makes everything easier; but I refuse to spoil your freedom, dear old boy."

Nick squeezed her hand.

"A half hour ago," he proclaimed loftily, "I stood in the orchard bequeathed me by my late uncle, and announced to all who cared to hear, that I could conquer the world. And now you imply that I can't conquer a slip of a girl in a pink gown. I refuse to be vanquished! Something tells me that you'd be able to put up with me. Without conceit, I think I can promise to prove a more thrilling housemate than Miss Sadie. Run along now, and pack your bag. I'll allow you a suitcase as far as State Line. In forty minutes—no, thirty, I'll be at the back gate in uncle's rusty flivver. We'll leave it behind us after the parson has done his worst. Be gone, girl. The hour waxes late."

"Are you really—proposing to me?"

Gay's cheeks burned, and the young man answered: "I am. Gee! I've always supposed it would be a fearful undertaking, and it comes as easy! For two cents I'd kiss you, if I wasn't afraid Selina was at the window."

To his surprise Gay stifled a sob.

"I—can't, Nick."

"Why not?"

"It wouldn't be fair."

"Not to you, perhaps," he agreed amiably. "For me, it would be a cinch."

"You're—so young," she hesitated. "I'm older than you!"

"Not really," she contradicted. "Not in your feelings, Nick. You're just a kid."

"Before night," he announced proudly, "I'll be a married man; but not if you dilly-dally this way. My dear, it's the very top o' the morning. Let's be off."

He arose, pulling her to her feet, and at his touch something of his own buoyancy and enthusiasm swept through her. Her eyes sparkled. She said, her heart palpitating wildly: Oh, I'd love it, Nick, but—"

"But me no buts," he quoted, and turned away, calling over his shoulder: "In thirty minutes—at the back gate. . . ." And stooping to rescue the emblems of freedom that he had dropped for her sake, vaulted the low wall and disappeared.

CHAPTER II.

Thirty minutes!

Gay stood paralyzed in her own little room, to which she had fled when Nick strode away. "In thirty minutes," he had said, "at the back gate." How could one get ready to change one's entire life in a half hour? The idea was preposterous. There was so much to do: a note of explanation to Miss Sadie; a lunch to save the price of dinner at a hotel, thought prudent Gay; a suitcase. . . . What, oh what should she put into her suitcase?

Still dazed, she opened her closet door, where, as if in answer to question, hung a big bandanna that had adorned her shoulders when she acted as Gypsy fortune teller at a church fair. The sight brought an inspiration. Bother the suitcase! She would be as good a tramp as Nick himself!

Gay laughed joyously. She didn't know that this inspired decision was something Nick was never to forget; but she felt dazed no longer as she snatched the handkerchief and spread it on her bed. In five minutes she was out of the pink gown and slipping into a khaki middy. In fifteen she was tying a knot in a bulging bandanna bundle. In twenty she was scrawling a hasty note which was doomed to scandalize Miss Sadie Twichell; and in thirty, when Nick, true to schedule, arrived at the back gate, she stood waiting, breathless, to be sure, but waiting, her bundle tied to the late Grandpa Twichell's cane swung over on shoulder, a crimson sweater on her arm, a crimson tam upon her head, and a lunch basket at her feet.

"On time," said Nick.

His eyes, sweeping upward from the stout Oxfords on her small feet to the stick and bundle, widened with surprise. Gay never forgot that look. If, in those thirty minutes Nick had regretted his rash decision, his fears were put to flight. The smile he threw her caused Gay's heart to sing. Nick was pleased!

"Good girl," he said with vast approval, and was at her side. He lifted the basket questioningly.

"Lunch," Gay answered. "It'll save buying one."

Nick laughed. "I see I have chosen a thrifty wife," he said and proceeded without further comment to stow away her bundle in the back of the machine.

There followed a quarter of an hour that to Gay seemed breathlessly constrained. It wasn't the silence—she was used to silences with Nick; it was something within herself—something that asked: "Oh, have I done right? Is this fair to him?"

As for Nick, he appeared to be unnecessarily intent upon the familiar road. It was not until the town was left behind, and they had chugged to the top of Sunset Hill that he stopped the car, breaking the silence to say quietly: "Take your last look at our native heath, Gay."

She arose and turned about, laying a steady hand upon his shoulder. Something clutched at her heart as she looked down on the town that she were to be his wife.

Her own emotions she did not analyze. Nick was just Nick to her—the finest comrade she had ever known. He was true blue. She could trust him forever and ever. Never could she love anybody else. That he had asked her to marry him out of a sudden impulse of his generous heart, she knew. Was she wronging him by her own impulsive yielding? Yet he had called her "his girl."

True dyes are easiest to use!

Dresses, drapes or lingerie look new when they're re-dyed with Diamond Dyes. No spotting or streaking; never a trace of that re-dyed look. Just rich, even, bright colors that hold amazingly through wear and washing.

Diamond Dyes are the highest quality dyes you can buy because they're so rich in pure anilines. That's what makes them so easy to use. That's what they've been famous for 50 years. 15 cent packages—all drug stores.

Diamond-Dyes

had sheltered her all her life. It had sometimes seemed a prosaic town to Gay; now, in comparison with a bewildering and unexpected future, it looked dear and friendly. Almost, she was sad to leave it. The grass of the common was so gaily green, topped by tender, uncurling leaves of elm trees that had stood there for a century. Blossoming orchards sloped to the quiet river; and everywhere was the sweet scent of spring.

Gay's hand tightened, and Nick covered it with his own.

"Homesick—already?" he questioned gently.

Gay shook her head as they began the descent of the long hill.

"No, Nick, I wasn't homesick, exactly; but it looked so natural; and what we're doing is so amazing. Why, even an hour ago I didn't dream—"

She stopped, as if it were difficult to express her thought; and Nick continued: "That before the sun was noon-high you'd be starting on your honeymoon? Well, Gay, we're both in the same boat. I don't wonder you feel a little dazed. I'm dazed myself; but you're not to feel lonesome. It shan't let you. I tell you what, young lady, we're lucky to live within forty miles of a state where we can get a license and be married all in an hour!"

"And how I've scorned the people who have done it!"

Gay flushed hotly at the memory; but Nick only smiled as he admitted: "Same here, old girl. We never know when the shoe may pinch the other foot, do we? But there's one thing I'll wager a bride never did before, Gay, and that's to start off on her honeymoon with her goods and chattels tied up in a bandanna."

He spoke so seriously that for a moment Gay forgot the look he had given her when they started. She wondered, with a little chill at her heart, if Nick would rather she'd have come to him as—well, as most girls would have come. Was there, perhaps, something in him that revolted at what might seem a lack of daintiness on her part. He didn't know what that red bandanna held!

"Nick," she began, as if she was just the least bit frightened, "did—did you think it wasn't nice of me to come this way?"

He turned to her, surprise written on his face. "Nice?—why—" (he put his foot on the brake bringing the car almost to a standstill), "why shouldn't it be nice? I think it was bully of you, Gay. Do you know, after I left you I wondered just how we'd manage. I'm not such an idiot as to think you could travel as light as I can; but a suitcase—Well, I'll say, Gay, that when I saw you standing there, not keeping me waiting a minute, and with that bundle on your stick, I said to myself: 'You haven't made any mistake in your girl, old man.' I wanted to cheer!"

He loosened his hold on the brake so suddenly that Gay lost her balance, and reaching out he put an arm across her shoulders, keeping it there until they reached the level country once again. It seemed to the girl an action wholly brotherly. Even after his reassuring answer to her question, she wondered if Nick felt for her the least bit the way he ought to feel, if she were to be his wife.

Her own emotions she did not analyze. Nick was just Nick to her—the finest comrade she had ever known. He was true blue. She could trust him forever and ever. Never could she love anybody else. That he had asked her to marry him out of a sudden impulse of his generous heart, she knew. Was she wronging him by her own impulsive yielding? Yet he had called her "his girl."

Demonstrates Invention

Woman Has Contraption Which Will Revolutionize Marbles and Miniature Golf

Mrs. Nora Payne, of Brighton Beach, New York, gave a demonstration of her new invention—a device which she hopes will soon revolutionize the game of marbles, the game of miniature golf and the game of darning holes out of socks.

Mrs. Payne, who is 26, has a 9-year-old son who inspired the invention. The boy used to come in with holes in the knees of his stockings and while his mother sewed them up, this idea of revolutionizing things suddenly smote her.

Her invention looks like a cross between a bicycle and a gearshift lever. It has a knob at the top, attached to a rod which runs down through a cylinder. At the bottom of the cylinder is an opening and a little flipper.

The marble player simply stands on his feet, clamps the thing down over a marble gives the knob a wham with his hand and the marble shoots out. Any self-respecting boy who owned such a contraption would not stoop to shoot marbles.

A CRY in the night. Colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy. This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never harm. It is the sensible thing when children are ailing. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it safe for frequent use.

Feeding Laying Hens

Ten Year Average Cost Record Is Given By Experimental Station

The ten-year average of the cost of feeding laying hens at the Lenoxville Experimental Station of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is $2.43 per hen; which means that with eggs selling at an average of 35 cents per dozen it takes 6.95 dozen, or 81 eggs, to pay for the keep of the laying hen, eggs laid in excess of that number being profit.

Minard's Liniment has a hundred uses.

"Every Sunday we go fishing," complained the young wife, "and you know I hate fish."

"Well," said her husband, surveying the empty basket, "I catch as few as possible."

The unicorn fish wears a single horn.
